"Eric Yoffie is the rare public speaker who fearlessly tackles the biggest issues of the day in a way that avoids common political and social stereotypes, and with a manner that makes even complex topics easily digestible for audiences. As a speaker and conference producer myself, I know how hard this can be. Even rarer, Eric blends a strong sense of ethics and spirituality with a keen knowledge of domestic and foreign issues, all without being preachy. His humility and dry wit delight audiences. I have seen him speak many times and have never failed to leave feeling enlightened."

– Walt Mossberg, Wall Street Journal columnist and co-producer of the D: All Things Digital conferences

"I remember Rabbi Yoffie, when you spoke at ISNA's convention in Chicago...You spoke eloquently about the importance of fighting social and legal discrimination against Muslims. Your public words resonated with the audience, which gave you a standing ovation. What was especially remarkable, in my view, was the fact that the Muslims gathered were clearly convinced of your commitment to their rights, despite the fact that many of them would have disagreed with some of your views on the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, which you did not hesitate to express in that forum."

"...a mesmerizing and entertaining speaker."

"Beth Israel of San Diego was honored to host Rabbi Yoffie over a two day period during our congregation's year-long 150th anniversary celebration. We asked him to speak to large and small groups. In both settings he showed a profound understanding of the Jewish world and current issues regarding American Jewish life and Israel. His talks are learned, powerful and passionate, and reveal keen and thoughtful insight into the issues and challenges he sees facing the Jewish world. He truly inspired his listeners and his personal warmth and charisma made his visit to our community a highlight of our year. We felt honored and privileged to have a thinker and leader of his stature in our midst."
